Homework 3 - Summary-Critique

Pick a paper from the ACL anthology (https://www.aclweb.org/anthology/) to read and critique.

Some example topics:
- Anaphora resolution
- Document summarization
- Information extraction
- Machine translation
- Named entity recognition
- Parsing
- Part of speech tagging
- Question answering
- Speech recognition
- Word sense disambiguation

Your paper should include the following:

- A summary of the paper, including the problem the authors were trying to solve, the approach they took, some of the major influences on their approach, and the results. This must be in your own words, but you can use a figure or table from the paper.

- A critical analysis, including the following:

  - How well did the authors explain the problem they were trying to address?

  - Did the authors review prior work done towards tackling the problem?

  - Did the evaluation seem fair? Are the results convincing?

  - What were some limitations to the approach the authors took?

  - Are there other possible applications of this research that the authors didn't mention?

  - What are possible ways to build on the authors approach?

  - What would be a different way of approaching the problem?

Your paper should be in the ACL formatting according to the following guide:

http://acl2014.org/acl2014.pdf

Submit both a pdf and either a .docx or .pages file.

The paper should be 2-3 pages long.
